STATEMENT OF
THE SUGAR INDUSTRY OF PERU,
CENTRAL DE COOPERATIVAS AGRARIAS DE
PRODUCCION AZUCARERA DEL PERU (CECOAAP)

This statement, in lieu of oral testimony, is submitted in the above matter on behalf of the Peruvian sugar industry.

The Peruvian sugar industry is organized as a system of worker-owned cooperativas incorporated within a central body, Central de Cooperativas Agrarias de Produccion Azucarera del Peru (CECOAAP). The Peruvian sugar industry has traditionally been one of the largest suppliers of sugar to the United States. For example, in 1974, the last year of the Sugar Act, Peru was the fifth largest supplier of sugar to the U.S. market and the fourth largest among Western Hemisphere suppliers.

In all, some 240,000 Peruvians rely directly on the industry for their subsistence. In addition, sugar represents an important element of Peru's gross national product and a major source of foreign exchange. Indeed, in 1975, sugar was Peru's main export commodity; sales to the U.S. market amounted to $270 million that year. The Peruvian sugar industry is also a major importer of products and capital goods from the United States.

As is true of the sugar producers of the United States, and we are sure, those of all other countries, the Peruvian sugar industry is experiencing serious losses that present a threat to its economic and financial stability. The experienced cost levels of the various growing units within the Peruvian sugar industry have been higher, for the past several months, than the selling price in the world market which, of course, now includes the U.S. market. There is no sign that prices will rise to a level equivalent to costs in the near future, and the prospect of profitable operations is even more remote. To the contrary, the prevalent opinion is that prices will remain uneconomically low.

Therefore, unless measures are adopted to provide for a more stable world market and, in particular, a more solid and profitable U.S. market, the danger exists that U.S. and world sugar production will be curtailed in favor of more profitable agricultural products. In such an event, sugar prices will increase rapidly initiating a new period of speculation and general instability similar to that of 1974. Such price instability would be contrary to the interests of the U.S. consumers as well as the interests of sugar producers in the United States and throughout the world.

Given these prospects, we urge the Commission to recommend to the U.S. Congress that it adopt measures that will guarantee a reasonable price for all the traditional suppliers of the U.S. market, including Peru. We further urge the Commission not to recommend or adopt measures, such as a further tariff increase, that would benefit U.S. sugar producers to the detriment of foreign producers. Clearly, measures depriving foreign suppliers of any benefits derived from an increase in sugar prices in the U.S. market would make it economically infeasible for foreign suppliers to continue exporting to the U.S. market, and will ultimately confront U.S. consumers with a sugar shortage and a consequent sharp increase in prices.

Respectfully submitted,
